Portraits

Macro

I really enjoyed this project because I was able to take an ordinary object and make it look like something bigger. This lipstick had been at the bottom of my purse for weeks but these pictures make it look like something special. I love that you have the ability to do that with photography.

Makeup

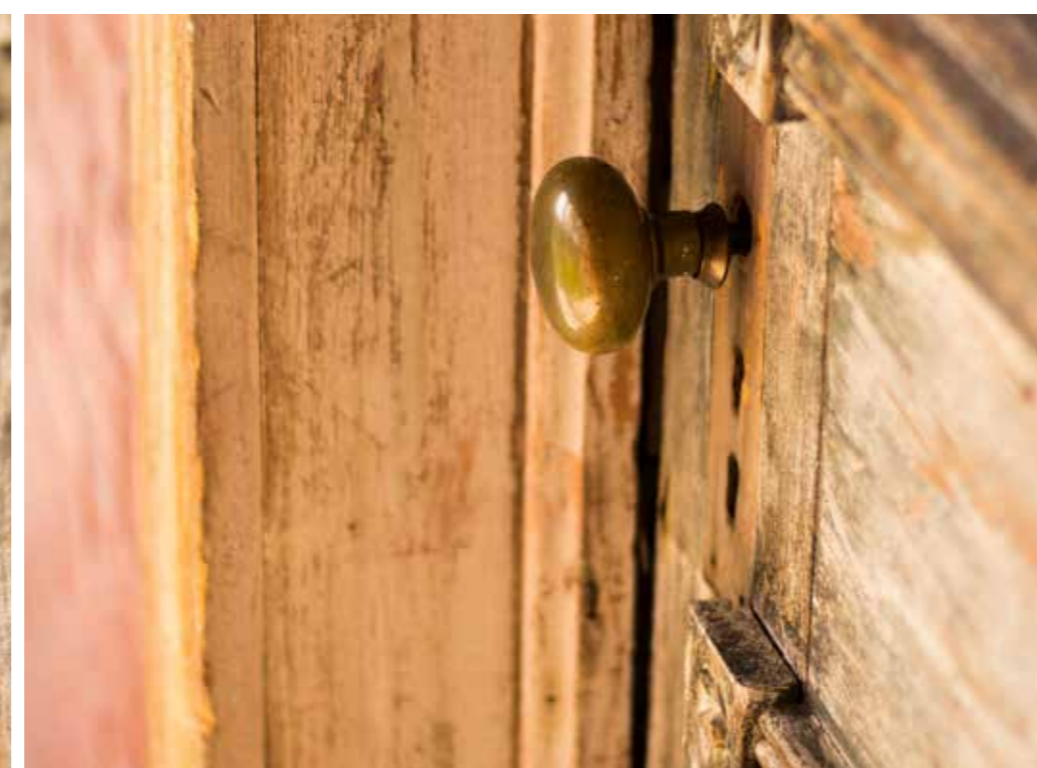

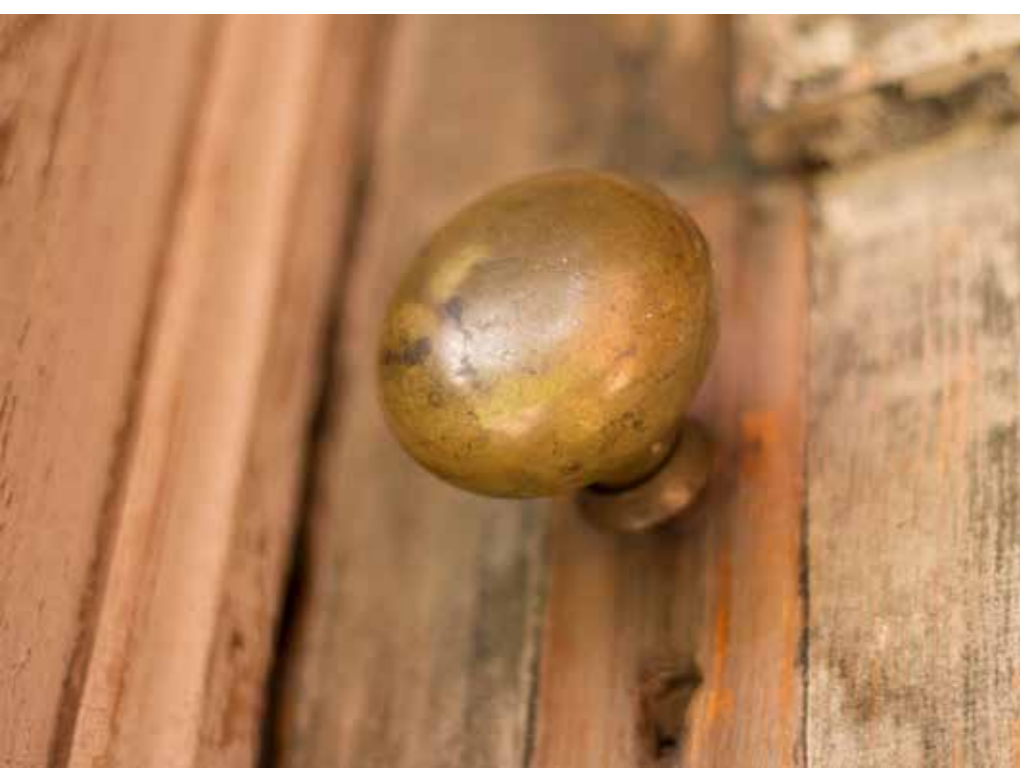

Makeup has taught me that art can be anything. It is a way to express yourself and be unique. Makeup is not meant to cover or hide behind. It is meant to enhance the beautiful features you already have.

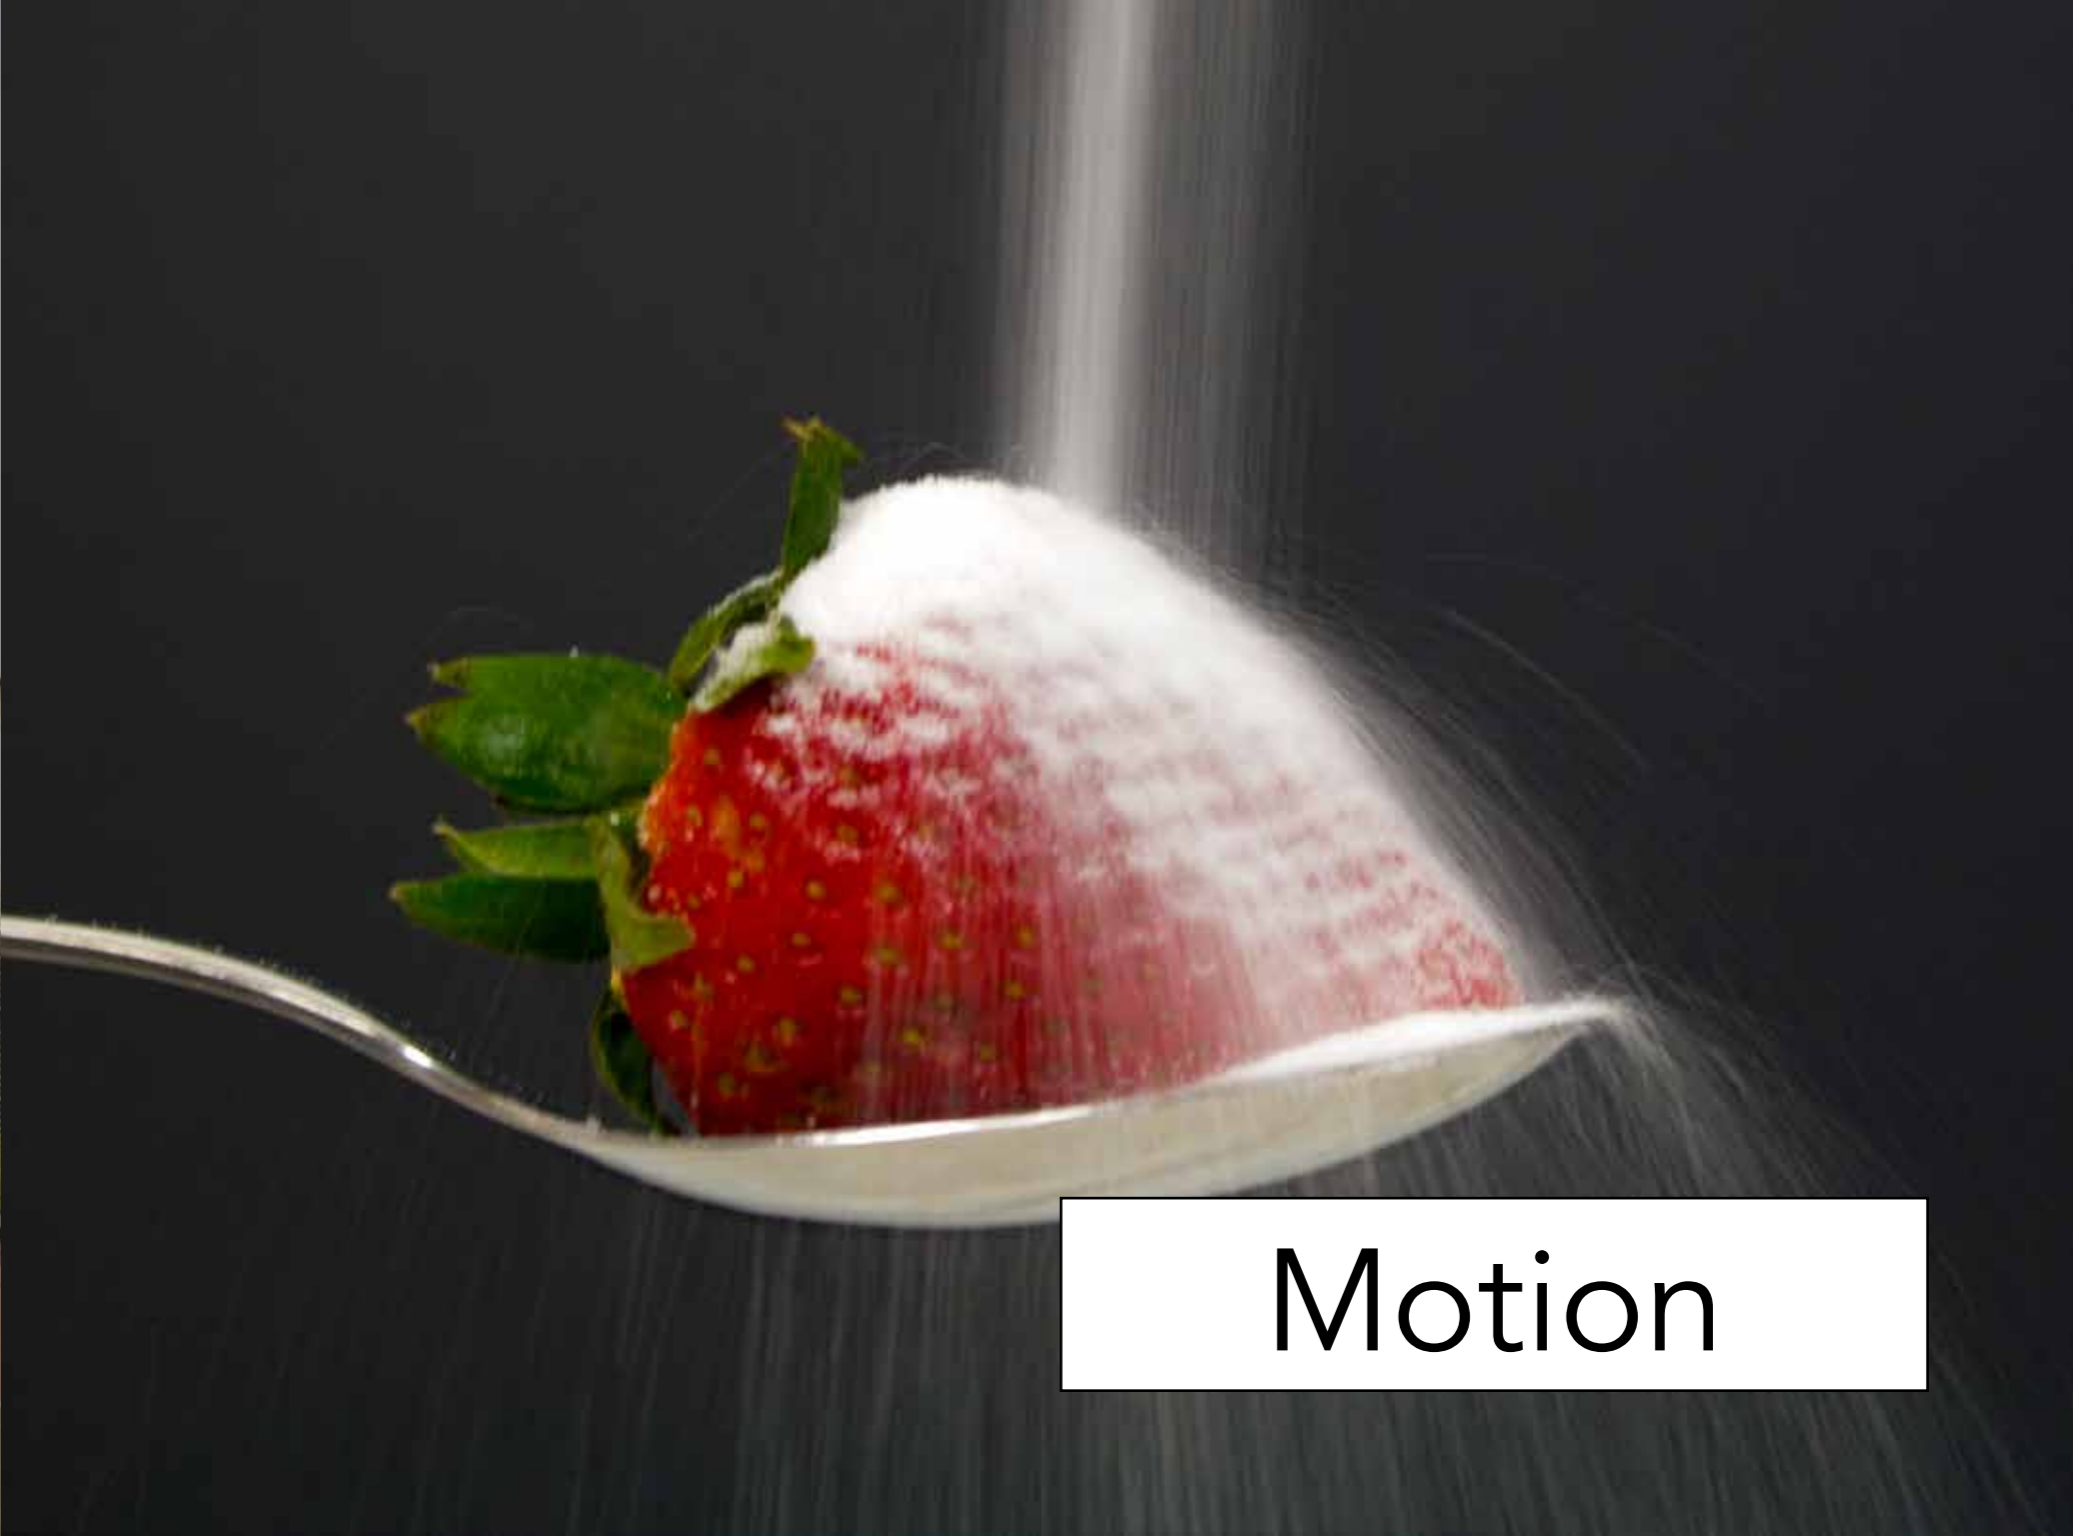

I have come to love taking multiple pictures of the same subject. It forces you to be creative and put thought into your pictures. These are all taken of the same door at Bannack. I liked being able to see this subject in different view points.
